

American Chamber of Commerce and Australian Industry Group
Defence Trade Mission: Sea-Air-Space Exposition
Washington D.C., USA
18-20 March 2008

Supported by:

The American Chamber of Commerce (AmCham) in Australia and the Australian Industry Group (Ai Group) are organising a Defence Trade Mission to Washington D.C. to visit the Navy League's Sea-Air-Space Exposition 2008. This exposition is not open to the general public.

The Exposition will focus on what's new in sea, air and space technology and also includes a Conference at which top military and defence speakers will detail the latest developments in this area. The Exposition is attended by senior US Department of Defence personnel as well as drawing top decision-makers from the U.S. Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Merchant Marine.

Your participation as a defence contractor or supplier provides an unparalleled marketing opportunity for developing business relationships with the U.S. maritime services sector.

At Sea-Air-Space 2008 your company can:

- Build its corporate profile and business contacts among government and military professionals
- Showcase new products and services, and pursue face-to-face meetings with major companies
